Since the time of Cleopatra and the Queen of Sheba, North African women were famed for their beauty, using beauty secrets and rituals which carried a sense of mystique and seduction.

La Sultane de Saba is the creation of a Moroccan family who moved to Paris and set up this phenomenal spa brand which they still own and manage today.

La Sultane de Saba has brought these beauty secrets back to life for the 21st century. These age-old secrets use the same natural ingredients and truly effective treatments which have been passed down from mother to daughter through generation to generation.

A soft Moroccan background rhythm beats, while copper bowls with rose petals and flickering lanterns line the hallways. Beautiful barefoot therapists greet you on entering the fragrant rooms, ready to give their undivided attention.

La Sultane de Saba has established itself as a spa and beauty expert, bringing its unique luxury spa experience to the well-heeled and discerning Parisians. The company successfully runs 3 flagship spas in Paris and the brand is available in over 1,200 spas around the world.

The spas encapsulate the Moroccan essence combining ethnic decadent glamour with the purity of a completely natural range.

La Sultane de Saba considers every detail as an important part of the overall experience - all focussed on bringing wellbeing and relaxation to the mind and body. A sense of mystery, sensuality and opulence prevail as the beauty secrets are unleashed.

LA SULTANE FRANGIPANI & LOTUS FLOWER CEREMONY

On La Sultane de Saba's journey to Bali they discovered the beauty rituals which stem from the exotic island surroundings. This ritual was named a 'ceremony' as it has traditionally been reserved for royalty, in preparation for a special occasion.

A candle-lit flower petal foot bath relaxes the mind before the body is exfoliated using a rice and coconut cream scrub which is massaged in from the tip of the toes to the head. A rich blend of frangipani & lotus flower shea butter, oil and milk envelop the body before a relaxing massage is carried out to balance the mind and calm any pre-event nerves! Skin is left smooth as silk and the exotic scents of Bali last the entire day.
